Panel 13 Balancing “Free Speech” and “Good Taste” in Trademarks—International Approaches to Registration of Disparaging, Offensive or Scandalous Trademarks Under current U.S. law “free speech” trumps “good taste” in trademark registrations. Recent decisions have struck down long-standing provisions barring trademark registration of ethnic slurs and “dirty” words as free speech violations, releasing a torrent of applications for such marks. How do other countries balance “free speech” and competing public policy issues in their trademark registration laws? Is the U.S.’s position consistent with NAFTA? Co-Chairs: L. Donald Prutzman, Tannenbaum Helpert Syracuse & Hirschtritt LLP, New York Keri Johnston, Johnston Law, Toronto Panelists: Alejandro Cardenas, MCOY Abogados, Mexico City Avv. Class action law in Canada is more recent, with the first provincial law passed in the late 1970s. Although the U.S. rules were a source of inspiration for the Canadian rules, there are both similarities and differences between the two jurisdictions. This panel will compare class action law and recent developments in Canada and the United States. Co-Chairs: André Durocher, Fasken, Montreal Jay L. Panel 16 That's Your Opinion: Cross-Border Transactions Opinion Practice International practice often relies on legal opinions issued by counsel in foreign jurisdictions. Lenders, borrowers, and others involved in cross-border transactions and disputes are well advised to be up to speed on the elements of international opinion practice. This panel, composed of lawyers with significant cross-border experience, will explore these elements in the context of the current international legal and financial climate. Co-Chairs: Steven Hollander, Watson Farley & Williams LLP, New York Lisa Mantello, Osler, Hoskin & Harcourt LLP, Toronto Panelists: Ronnen Gaito, RJ Gaito International, Luxembourg Alexandra Michalopoulos, Watson Farley & Williams LLP, Hamburg	Panel 17 Cross-Border Litigation: Comity and Culture Clash The panel will address recurring themes in cross-border litigation such as discovery, rogatory commissions, and expert evidence. Some competing considerations in the context of cross-border litigation are comity, on the one hand, and conflicting legal conceptions, on the other hand. Cases involving these culture clashes are bound to proliferate with the increasing mobility of people and documents across jurisdictions. Co-Chairs: Hon. Pierre Dalphond, Former Judge of the Quebec Court of Appeal, Montreal Nancy M. Thevenin, Esq., F.C.I.Arb., Thevenin Arbitration & ADR, New York Panelists: Eric Bickford, Cornerstone, New York Judge Robert S.
